

MCC Kahului Campus Map

On the cover—

Maui Community College students practice newly learned skills in both the classroom and the outdoor environment.

Front cover left—

A ceramics student practices hand building and glazing techniques.

Front cover top to bottom—

Maui's fragile reefs make the island an excellent laboratory for students to study marine resources; MCC geology associate professor David Grooms and his students study Hawaiian volcanic landforms on Maui's west side; Students identify ethnobotanical resources of and examine their cultural use and management; MCC students attend business and computer classes in the Ka Lama building on the Kahului campus.

Back Cover from left—

As part of their educational experiences, Maui Language Institute students from around the world learn to perform the hula; MCC faculty and staff learn ancient Hawaiian cultural ways of planting taro and making poi.