In – Class Tutors

In-Class Tutors provide high-quality and tangible support to student writers in developmental English and Math courses. In-Class Tutors are not like student assistants who help faculty with the teaching of a course or grading of papers. The In-Class Tutor is assigned to work with a specific class and works closely with the instructor and students, to provide tutoring and develop study skills. Instructors should incorporate the tutor with in the course curriculum, and students are also encouraged to meet with the tutor for one-on-one sessions outside of class. In-Class Tutors are trained to apply ethical tutoring practices in their work. This means that they will not “write” or “edit” papers for your students, but will help them learn about difficult issues of writing.
