Contract Renewal
UHMC suggested guidelines

Disclaimer: This is based on UHMC department chair and DPC comments about contract renewals and my personal experience as an English faculty member, department chair, DPC member and TPRC member. Be sure to contact your own department chair, DPC, VC and chancellor for specific requirements and expectations.
Stick to Requirements

- Use the job description in UHPA faculty classification as a guide/checklist

- Address the points from Contract Renewal Guideline

- Use UH Maui Guideline as outline
Know terms as they relate to you

- Probationary and tenure-track faculty follow fall submissions
- Non-probationary and non-tenure track follow spring
- Bargaining unit (BU7)
- G-funded (general funds) versus grant-funded
- DC (department chair)
- DPC (Division Personnel Review Committee)- selected by DC 3 members, should be at least one rank higher
- TPRC (Tenure and Promotion Review Committee)- confidential and selected by chancellor’s office, on and off campus committee with folks in and outside of your discipline
Follow suggested format

- 15-20 pages
- Double spaced
- 12-point font Times New Roman, Arial
- 3-ring binder, with cover and side label
- Complete application form
- Pages numbered (bottom-centered) as directed in application form
  - Example: Contract renewals narrative 2.1
  - Example: T&P narrative 10.1
1. PRIMARY DUTIES

- Teaching philosophy
- Classes you teach
- Assessment of your student and peer evaluations
- Assigned time activities

(This is the most important section. If you’re not teaching faculty, use your job description and consider adding to appendix.)
Stay Student Centered

- Describe the impact for students
- Relate to SLOs
- Describe what you do with students
Engaging lessons cultivate student motivation,
Engaging lessons cultivate student motivation, so I spark student interest by including many different forms of media in my lessons. In my English classes and college orientation classes, I use essays, short stories, poems, song lyrics, visual art, music, TV commercials, and field trips to promote course objectives.
Illustrate Your Claims

- Give specific examples, lessons, experiences
- Use qualitative and quantitative data
- Consider addressing retention rates
- Use data that supports your efforts in achieving SLOs
- Use quotes from evals
Respond to Reviewers

- Address ALL recommendations from previous review - chancellor, VCAA, Dept chair, DPC
- Address peer observations/evaluations
- Acknowledge weaknesses and create strategy for improving
In a Fall 2008 peer evaluation of my English 22 SkyBridge class, XX wrote the following:

In a Fall 2008 peer evaluation of my English 22 SkyBridge class, XX wrote the following:

As a result of XX’s feedback, I will continue to work on balancing my time throughout class with special attention to the timing of SkyBridge classes. Because students in the HITS classroom take a little longer to communicate, often hesitate before pressing the “talk” button, and need comments repeated, I will save the last 5 minutes of class for outreach site student questions and encourage students on the Kahului campus to save questions for after class time or individual conferences as appropriate.
2. College and Community Services Activities

- Identify activity
- Brief description
- Connect to outcome for students, college (So what?)
Organization Tip

- Use headings to separate sections
- Use consistency
Learning Communities Institute (Kapiʻolani Community College, May 2008): In preparation for teaching English 22 for the Muʻo Aʻe learning cohort in Fall 2008, I attended
3. Professional & Self Development

- Connect what you learned/experienced to your teaching/work - what was the impact/improvement?
4. Leadership Activities

Emerging for C3
5. Goals

a) Identify earlier goals, explain progress, identify outcome
   OR explain not meeting goal

b) Identify specific goals for next contract:
   Can you measure and demonstrate accomplishment?

Organization tip

Make it easy to refer to appendix

Example: “I collaborated with campus leaders in creating and collectively organizing and implementing an engaging and successful two or three-day New Faculty Institute (see appendix, pp. 275-288) every August prior to the start of duty period. New faculty, lecturers, and staff (see appendix, pp. 277-278) experienced the talents of their colleagues and the resources of the campus.”
Proofread

- Get Content Feedback
  - Check with someone in content area/ DPC
- Get Proofreading Help
  - Use spell check, get reader for readability/punctuation/grammar errors
"When applicants are clear about why they should be offered a renewed contract, a clarity that allows me - as the reader – to better understand why they taught the way they did and what came of it, contributed on campus and in the community the way they did and what came of it, and developed themselves professionally the way they did and how that will be incorporated into their subsequent year(s) at UHMC, it helps me to more easily make a decision."
Most common pieces of advice:

- Be honest
- Proofread
- Make connections for your reader
Suggestions for next steps

- Schedule your 2 class observations per semester (DPC and faculty of higher rank)
- Connect with your DPC and department: get feedback about committee choices, discuss your evaluations so you can make changes
Suggestions for next steps

- Create a folder for possible appendix items
- Keep datebook of some kind
- Gather your eCafe results
- Get Adobe Acrobat to paginate your appendix, start your file now
- Allow time to assemble your document
- Allow time for feedback—secure a proofreader
Closing thoughts

- "Do the job you were hired to do with passion and to the best of your ability and writing the document will be easier."

- "Be yourself and tell your story."
